

Jimmy's Home Again

Within a few hours of The Daily Colonist's appeal on behalf of his family, runaway Jimmy Page came home. The 13-year-old made himself known to RCMP officers in Nanaimo and got a ride back to Victoria. He had left home Sunday, looking for a job so he could buy a Christmas present for his dad, Charles A. Page, 1536 Burton. His five brothers, through this newspaper, appealed yesterday that he return. But Jimmy didn't know that. He was just homesick. Reunited with his brothers, Jimmy was happy last night. He's holding David, 2, on his knee. Doug, 4, is close beside him. Gary, 9, Wayne, 6, are behind him. Brother Ronnie, 10, was working when picture was taken.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Cheap Flights for 'Masses', Toppling of TCA Demanded

CPA Head Sees

Big Fast Planes But Fares Same

VANCOUVER (CP)—Passengers flying Canadian Pacific Airlines routes will benefit by bigger and faster planes in the next 10 years, but there will be no significant reduction in fares.

CPA president Grant McConachie told the Gordon economic commission Thursday his company plans to spend $60,000,000 for new aircraft in the decade ahead—with all planes to be built outside of Canada.

But while the new high-speed aircraft will help increase operating efficiency and reduce costs, the savings would be virtually eliminated by higher insurance and depreciation charges, he said.

Pubs Closed On Dec. 26

Cocktail bars and beer parlors throughout the province will be closed Monday, Dec. 26, Liquor Control Board chairman Col. Donald McGowan said yesterday.

The move has been ordered in view of the fact Christmas falls on a Sunday this year. The ruling does not apply to Monday, Jan. 2.

Mr. McConachie was among a large number of witnesses appearing before the commission as the five-man body drove towards a completion of its three-week western tour.

VANCOUVER (CP)—An end to the "monopoly" of Trans-Canada Air Lines and lower air travel rates to the public were called for Wednesday in a brief presented to the Gordon economic commission.

Russ Baker, president of Pacific Western Airlines, said in the brief his plan was to bring air travel to low income families and small businesses.

"The TCA monopoly on Canadian mainline routes has set Canada 10 years behind the United States and some European countries in the field of low cost air transportation," said the brief.

SKIMS CREAM
"TCA has in reality only skimmed the cream off the traffic potential by handling first class traffic."

As an alternative to "regulated monopoly" Mr. Baker called for "regulated competition" and suggested an "air bus" service to bring air travel to low income groups.

HOW COME?

He asked "Where does the discretion, if any, of the chief come from to excuse some people from the provisions of the parking meter by-laws?"

"As the chief apparently admits that in his discretion 164 persons were excused from parking meter tickets for various reasons, we want to know who they were and what the reasons were."

"We are confident that the chief has proper reasons for these exemptions and therefore has no objection to making the reasons public," Mr. Moresby continued.

"So far they have not been agreed upon internationally. I wish very much they could be. Until they can be agreed upon, there does not seem to me there is any individual action that can be taken."

His declaration will be debated in the Bundestag today. Meanwhile, the British, U.S. and French ambassadors to West Germany protested against a Soviet declaration that East Berlin is a part of "sovereign" East Germany.

Von Brentano praised the Western powers for their stand at the Geneva conference for German reunification.

In gratitude, he declared, West Germany would continue "faithfully, consistently and unerringly" its present policy of Western alliances.

The commitment was made by a cabinet order in council Monday. She will be detained at Essondale "until her complete or partial recovery."

'How Can Chief Do This?'

Full Ticket-Fixing Explanation Demanded by Victoria Lawyer

Meeting Discloses Parking Particulars

A Victoria lawyer, William C. Moresby Jr., has demanded a full explanation of a number of "fixed" parking tickets reported at a special meeting yesterday.

Mr. Moresby said he was representing a number of citizens.

"With respect to every parking meter violation ticket issued to me, I have paid the fine without question," he said.

"So have all my friends. I have never heard of a ticket being fixed. It comes as a great surprise to me to learn through the press that apparently some are fixed."

He was referring to reports of a meeting between the Corps of Commissioners officials, the police commission and police department heads, including City Manager C. C. Wyatt, City Solicitor Arthur Patton and other civic officials.

FIGURES LISTED
Figures produced at the meeting showed that out of 3,875 tickets issued in October, 473 were cancelled on the spot because people were away getting change, or arrived seconds later; 28 were cancelled because meters were out of order; 22 were placed on an exempt car; and 164 had been personally cancelled by Police Chief John Blackstock.

Another 400, originally unaccounted for, were later reported to be in various stages of processing and had not been included in the October totals.

But it was the 164 torn up by Chief Blackstock which concerned Mr. Moresby.

He said that from his personal view as a taxpayer, and on instructions from citizens who had retained him, he "must demand the answer to certain questions."

He asked "Where does the discretion, if any, of the chief come from to excuse some people from the provisions of the parking meter by-laws?"

"As the chief apparently admits that in his discretion 164 persons were excused from parking meter tickets for various reasons, we want to know who they were and what the reasons were."

"So far they have not been agreed upon internationally. I wish very much they could be. Until they can be agreed upon, there does not seem to me there is any individual action that can be taken."

Christmas in the Air

Victoria's famous hanging baskets go back on downtown streets Monday—but wearing a Christmas look. They are filled with holly and cedar boughs, bound with red plastic ribbon and decked with tinsel. Last night, city streets were brighter—with strings of lights and the first baskets. On Saturday the Musicians' Union band will play through the streets, and on Saturdays thereafter until Christmas. It's all part of Chamber of Commerce yuletide jollity, with musicians co-operating.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Vital Debate Opens

Martin Calls on UN To Admit 'Real World'

By JACK BEST

Canadian Press Staff Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's Health Minister Paul Martin Thursday called on UN members to put aside partisan feelings, recognize political reality and open the international organization to 18 countries of divergent background.

Launching debate on a membership resolution sponsored by Canada and 27 other countries, Martin said that if the UN is to fulfill its role it must reflect "the real world, not a partial world of our contriving."

He appealed to members of the Security Council, which must act on the membership proposal, to take note of the "widespread feeling" in favor of a broadly representative UN.

Canada's chief UN delegate spoke in the General Assembly's special political committee after Victor A. Belandine of Peru, chairman of a good offices committee on membership, made his report.

Belandine said his committee, on which The Netherlands and Egypt were also represented, "fully supports" the proposal to admit five Communist and 13 non-Communist countries.

For the first time, Britain gave its official blessing to Canada's resolution. British delegate Sir Pierson Dixon said his country's only aim is to break the membership deadlock, which has existed since 1950. "We shall, of course, support the Canadian resolution," he added.

He scolded Russia, for threatening to veto the 13 Western-sponsored candidates if all Communist applicants are not admitted.

Russia's Vasily V. Kuznesov gave his full support to the Canadian proposal.

The 18 countries included in Canada's plan are Austria, Italy, Spain, Ireland, Finland, Portugal, Ceylon, Laos, Cambodia, Jordan, Libya, Nepal, Japan, Outer Mongolia, Albania, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Gaza Guns Roar

JERUSALEM (AP)—

Heavy shooting developed on the Gaza frontier Thursday. Egyptian and Israeli troops exchanged fire in the Kissufim area in a battle lasting until nightfall.

Each side blamed the other. Israeli officials said Egyptian troops within the Gaza strip started it by opening up on Israeli outposts.

In Cairo, an Egyptian spokesman said the Israelis began the fight by blasting at two Egyptian posts near Dier-Ei-Balah, south of Gaza town, with mortars and automatic weapons.

Egypt lodged a strong complaint with the Egyptian-Israeli armistice commission.

The battle developed after an Israeli plane drew fire from Egyptian anti-aircraft guns within the Gaza strip.

Judge Indicted For Fraud

NEW YORK (AP)—Eaton B. Jones, secretary of the joint U.S.-Canadian Pacific salmon fisheries commission, was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges of fraud in the sale of some $900,000 worth of bonds of an insolvent Alaskan company.

Jones, a Seattle municipal court judge, and the Alaska Telephone Corporation, of which Jones is secretary-treasurer and company counsel, were named in a 36-count indictment in Brooklyn.

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Scottish thrift paid off here Wednesday when a haggis saved from last year was used at the St. Andrew's Day banquet when one ordered from Vancouver failed to arrive in time. Premier Promises 'Dividends' in Future

Participation dividends, similar to those proposed in Alberta, may one day be available for B.C. residents, Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated yesterday.

"Great will be the dividends our people will receive both directly and indirectly in the future," he said yesterday.

The Alberta Social Credit League Wednesday unanimously endorsed a proposal to pay Albertans individual participation dividends from any surpluses derived from administration of natural resources rather than to continue increasing grants to municipalities.

"We've only been in power three years but we're catching up," the premier said yesterday. "Social Credit believes in increasing the purchasing power of our people in the best way possible."

Builder of First Plane Engine Now Homeless, Broke at 87

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The man credited with building the first successful aircraft engine, Charles Edward Taylor, 87, yesterday was forced to remain in Los Angeles County General Hospital because he had no place to go.

Taylor had been living at the home of an elderly friend, Mrs. I. C. Shafer, but when she was forced to take a rest he lost his home and entered the hospital Nov. 19 for treatment of asthma.

Although no longer in need of medical attention, "he just doesn't have any place to go," a hospital spokesman said, "so we're keeping him on here for a while."

Taylor is the man who built the airplane engine in 1902 that

Orville and Wilbur Wright used to make the first powered flight at Kitty Hawk.

"We were sort of partners," Taylor claimed. "I built the engine and they built the plane."

The hospital said that Taylor told them for record purposes that he received $800 yearly from a fund left by Orville Wright and that was his only source of income.

Blind Child Cured

Sainthood Possible for Pope Pius

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—An Italian weekly magazine says Vatican officials are already preparing documentation for the possible future beatification of Pope Pius XII. (Beatification is the first step to sainthood.)

The Italian weekly Epoca also says miraculous intervention by the Pope restored sight to an Italian child blind since birth.

The magazine says the child, who was "embraced by the pontiff while he

(the pontiff) prayed, suddenly recovered sight."

Epoca says news of the child's recovery was obtained from prelates at the Vatican.

The Vatican correspondent of Epoca, Giorgio Vecchiotti, reported that the preparations for beatification were being made "despite the understandable caution with which the subject is treated by the organs of the church concerned."

His article referred to a number

As Pontiff Prayed

of other miracles which have been unofficially attributed to the Pope.

Ten days ago the Pope permitted official confirmation of a report that he had had a vision of Christ, standing by his bed, one night in December, 1954, when doctors had feared for his life.

Vatican quarters say other miracles have occurred in the Pope's life and that documents on them are in the archives of the Vatican's secretariat of state.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

YESTERDAY we carried three pictures of a man shaving off his beard, while his wife looked on with delight.

This drove home a lesson which is already well known: hair on the face is out of fashion.

Unless a man is a sailor, he labels himself an eccentric by wearing a beard. Why?

Most males would find it more convenient to grow a beard than go through the labor of shaving daily. But the pressure of conformity, each one of them is too much of a coward to neglect his own face.

And yet we smugly denounce women for their slavish obedience to fashion.

The fact is that men are far worse slaves to fashion than women are.

Male fashions are slower-moving, but they demand a more exact and literal response.

In the Victorian age, the beard was the symbol of male domination. In this century, women are gaining greater and greater control of purchasing power, politics, and every other matter of public endeavor.

They live longer; they spend most of the money. Advertising is beamed at them; cars are built for them, easy to control and in many colors.

Since they seem to run the world, then, there is no reason why they should grudge us the one talent which they do not possess: growing a beard.

The twentieth century distaste for the beard is a symbol of female domination.

Surely the time has come for men to assert themselves in at least that field.

Let's start a vigorous campaign for the return of whiskers. Our wives may collect our life insurance and marry younger men; but it would do them no harm to have our hairy images looking down on them from the wall, to be a conscience when they try to badger the poor fellows into shaving.

Shoot-Bending Aids Production

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Shoot-bending of fruit trees is not very widely practiced, and not too well understood, but it is an excellent method of making a tree produce more fruit in certain circumstances, or to induce an unfruitful tree to co-operate.

The technique can be applied to almost any kind or shape of tree, vine or shrub, from low bushes to big, adult trees, and it works especially well on old trees which have lost interest in producing fruit.

FALL OR WINTER

The technique consists in taking vigorous two-year-old shoots, about three or four feet long, and bending them right over until the tip of the shoot is pointing towards the ground. The best time to do the job is in late autumn or early winter.

The following year, these shoots will be covered with blossoms along their whole length, followed by an abundance of fruit.

When more shoots are old enough and long enough to replace them, the old ones are cut right back to their point of origin, and the new ones bent down to replace them. In this way, a constant supply of young, vigorous, fruit-bearing shoots is assured.

BARK-RINGING

On large, adult trees which have gone into a fit of the sulks, the conventional treatment has been root-pruning or bark-ringing. I've never been happy about these techniques—they are drastic measures, and it is so easy to go just a bit too far, thereby killing the tree.

There are no risks in shoot-bending, and it works at least as well, if not better, than hacking at the roots or carving rings around the trunk. Besides, it is a lot less work, and the fruit gets more protection from the Victoria's mayoralty election became a two-way race yesterday when second-hand dealer W. A. Scott decided not to file nomination papers, leaving Mayor Claude L. Harrison and former alderman Percy B. Scurrell to fight it out.

No last-minute candidates appeared, either for the mayoralty or the four city council seats that will become vacant at the end of the year.

Nor were there last-minute candidates in the adjoining municipalities.

In the city, the adjoining municipalities and Central Saanich, eight men were elected to office by acclamation.

They were school trustees Harold Whitfield and Kenneth

Colorful Marine Dynasty Founded by Warren Family

BY JAMES K. NESBITT

Death here this week of Capt. Frederick James Douglas Warren recalls his grandfather, a noted seafarer of early B.C. days, who founded a line of sea captains that has gone into the fourth generation on this coast.

Capt. James Douglas Warren, native of Prince Edward Island, came to Victoria in 1838.

That year he became a local hero when he engaged in battle with hostile natives, as reported in The Victoria Gazette.

"Indian Outrage—As the ship Thornton was on her upward trip, she was attacked by three canoes filled with Indians, about 40 miles above Fort Rupert.

"A Newcomer" chief, being on board, warned Capt. Warren and crew, on seeing Indians approach, to get armed, as mischief was intended—the Indians immediately fired on the Thornton.

"KILLED 30

"Fortunately, Warren and his crew were well armed and succeeded in killing and disabling 30 of the 23 Indians. The Indian chief on the Thornton was slightly wounded, which roused his blood, and he is reported to have done some good-pistol shooting after wards.

"Capt. Warren is slightly wounded with buckshot in the breast, and one of his men severely. It is to be hoped the government will take this matter up with energy and make such an example as will prevent all such cases in future.

"Capt. Warren deserves the thanks of the community for his brave conduct."

BUIT-FINE SHIP

In 1833 Capt. Warren built a fine vessel here, as reported in The Colonist. "Capt. J. D. Warren's new three-masted steam schooner, which has been building during the past year by Mr. S. McSmith at the Rock Bay shipyard, is a staunch and well-finished vessel, about 300 tons register. Her frame is double, of Douglas pine and yellow cedar. The vessel is to be called the Boscowitz."

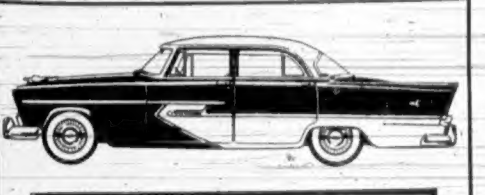

Ruined in the sealing industry, which for so long flourished out of Victoria, Capt. Warren was Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev landed at Rangoon to a cheery welcome from flag-waving Burmese and a handshake from Premier U Nu.

But they rated only a 19-gun salute whereas Tito received a 21-gun salute.

Pianist Uses 'Stop', 'Go' Pills

By BRUCE LOWTHREY

For Glenn Gould, relaxing is more difficult than playing the piano, but he managed some rest in his Empress Hotel room yesterday. Acclaimed Canada's greatest pianist, the 23-year-old Torontonian appears with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at the Royal Sunday and Monday.

The tensions of travelling and playing concerts make a pianist's life an artificial existence, says Glenn Gould of Toronto. But it's a good living and it has a future.

Only 23, he is regarded as Canada's greatest pianist and the reasons why will be realized when he plays Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra in the Royal theatre Sunday and Monday.

To keep up the pace, Mr. Gould has a bag-full of pills temporarily, stimulants "to keep going" and sedatives, fast and slow.

He has "a list of chiropractors" in Canada, and usually visits one before each concert. Like many pianists, he soaks his hands in hot water for half an hour before each concert.

Because he suffers from inflammation of hand muscles, he wears "two and sometimes three pairs of gloves outdoors from September to June," and has a specially knitted pair of mittens for practices.

"I don't enjoy the business of being a concert performer," Mr. Gould admitted here yesterday. "There are children of nature in the piano-playing world whom I envy because they treat it as a day-to-day business."

In Victoria for the first time, he is looking forward to release of his first records, Bach's "Goldberg Variations," next month. He was the first Canadian artist ever signed by Columbia, and will make more records soon.

But mainly his future will be composition. A quartet for strings which took him more than two years to compose will be premiered in Montreal next month, and Mr. Gould is planning a chamber concerto and an opera, the latter for television.

A student of the piano for 10 years, his first concert was with the Toronto Symphony at the age of 14.

He admits the prodigy status, "but my parents didn't exploit me . . . I might have enjoyed travelling more than I do now. It was a good way of missing school."

$1,000-a-Month Jobs Luring Scores of Air Force Flyers

OTTAWA (CP) — Scores of air-crew have left or want to leave the air force, RCAF officers say as much as $1,000 a month, are available.

The chief trouble seems to be the civilian pilot flying the able to aircrew in civvy street.

Victory Won By Tenacity And Courage

Six weeks ago A. C. Packford of Victoria learned he had attained a lifelong ambition.

The same day he was struck down by polio.

Tonight at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, convalescing after weeks in an iron lung, Mr. Packford will be certified by the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C.

The simple ceremony will mark the end of nine years of tenacity and courage.

Mr. Packford, like his five brothers in Victoria, learned a trade in the 30's. He became a skilled machinist.

But that wasn't enough. He went to night school and studied

Industrial arts and learned enough to qualify as an instructor in that field.

But his dream was to be a professional engineer. There was no short cut. But there was a delay.

TURNED DOWN

When the Second World War came along he was turned down because of weak eyesight but worked at his skilled trade.

Finally he got the chance to go to university. He had no help financially. He planned to work his way through.

The second interruption came when he was in a serious motorcycle accident after he started college. That took an other year and some of his physical strength.

But he kept at it. In 1951 he graduated as a mechanical engineer from the University of B.C. It had taken six years and there was still a long way to go before he was to reach the status of professional engineer.

With his new knowledge and his old skills, Mr. Packford worked in engineering jobs—with a trailer manufacturer in Vancouver, an engineering inspection firm, and the provincial government public works department.

Then after four years he submitted his thesis to the association and applied for certification.

Six weeks ago he was notified that he had been accepted. A headache and slight fever that day somewhat dulled his joy.

HIT BY POLIO

The next day he was fighting for breath in an iron lung. But he partially recovered. Now he is out of the iron lung and doctors say he will walk again.

Usually new members of the engineers' association are registered at a group banquet. The group, under Dr. H. C. Gunning, president, will make an exception tonight and register Mr. Packford in hospital.

The new engineer is married and has two children. He and his wife Bernice, also studying at UBC a few years ago, were married in 1950. The children are Leah, 3, and Nathan, seven months.

Officials said the cattle will be sold to Mexican ranchers on an easy payments plan.

The government is spending a total of about $6,000,000 in its program to increase livestock production and improve the herds.

Doctor Hater Hurls Bombs; Two Killed, Three Injured

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — Two leading Brisbane doctors were killed and two others and a horse trainer were injured Thursday when 39-year-old Karl Kast went on a shooting and bomb-throwing rampage in an office building.

Police said Kast, who killed himself after his outburst of vengeance, apparently held a grudge against the medical profession.

Refused to give him a compensation certificate for an alleged injured back.

Kast carried with him a suitcase full of gelignite sticks in water piping into the lobby of the building.

Victim No. 1 was George Boland, a Brisbane horse trainer, who was passing through the foyer. He grabbed a stick in an attempt to put out the fuse and it exploded, tearing away both his hands.

Victim No. 2 was Dr. Michael Gallagher, 35. Kast shot and critically wounded him with a 45-calibre pistol in his office.

Victim No. 3 was Dr. Arthur Meehan, 65; whose office was about 100 yards away. Meehan was shot dead.

Victim No. 4 was Dr. Andrew case outside Dr. Murray's door, told a waiting patient "this is my affair—keep out of it," and then fatally wounded Dr. Murray with several shots.

Victim No. 5 was Dr. John Lahti, 56. The killer carried his suitcase up to Lahti's office, but the doctor, alerted by the shooting in the other offices, grappled with Kast and threw him aside as he touched off one of his home-made bombs.

Faure Wins Election Issue But Faces Party Expulsion

PARIS (UP) — President Rene Coty last night signed a decree dissolving the national assembly and France will vote for a new assembly on New Year's Day, informed sources said.

The decree dissolving the assembly five months ahead of time will be published today in the official journal and will be dated effective then, it was reported.

The decree would virtually rule out the possibility that the assembly would meet before it is officially dissolved to vote on electoral reforms and consider a motion to force Premier Edgar Faure to resign.

The Socialists and Faure's own Radical Socialists had demanded such a session.

But Faure faced expulsion from his party for forcing the new elections. The Radical party steering committee voted 19 to 8 to kick him out and the executive committee was expected to confirm the action.

Faure neatly turned the tables in the assembly which had sought to vote him out of office for favoring early elections. He invoked a constitutional provision unused for 78 years to order the assembly dissolved instead of making elections mandatory within a month of the dissolution.

Politicians all over France were aroused by the premier's manoeuvre, and none was more furious than ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France, a former friend of Faure's who now dominates the radical party.

It was Mendes-France who called the steering committee into session yesterday, after printing a blistering attack on the premier in L'Express, organ of his radical faction.

Ag-on-the-spot investigation of the present housing situation at Kitimat will be made Dec. 20 by J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs.

"It will be an informal inquiry of a fact-finding nature," he said yesterday.

The move has been ordered by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black following calls for investigations into alleged high-price, sub-standard housing being erected at the aluminum centre.

CCF MLA Frank Howard, who represents the riding, recently called for a royal commission into the situation.

Mr. Brown will hold a public meeting at Kitimat on the evening of Dec. 20 and will return here the next day—if transportation is not interrupted—to report his findings.

Sharett in Canada To Shop for Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — Israel is seeking arms from Canada, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett told a press conference here Thursday.

Michael Comay, Israeli ambassador to Canada, said at the same time that his country is not trying to obtain large amounts of military supplies from Canada.

Israel has been trying to obtain arms from the West, particularly the United States, since the Soviet bloc began shipping arms to Egypt and other Arab countries.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said recently that Canada screens all requests for arms, consulting her Allies. Any arms sold were defensive, such as anti-aircraft guns. In the past, Canada has sold small amounts of arms to Israel.

Eden's Wire Breaks Groom's Incognito

LONDON (UP) — Dixon Gannett, a 26-year-old American, kept a secret from his British bride when they got married last week but thanks to a telegram from Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, she now knows who her husband is.

The secret: Gannett is the son of a prominent American, and not just an apprentice at the Ford motor factory here.

Crown Zellerbach Hikes Newspaper Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — An increase of $4 a ton in the price of newspaper, effective Jan. 1, was announced here by Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., and its affiliate, Elk Falls Co. Ltd.

When the telegram sending Eden's "warmest congratulations" arrived, Mrs. Jean Gannett, 19, could not understand why they were hearing from the prime minister, and asked her husband about it.

"Yes, honey, it's true," he said. "Sir Anthony is a friend of my dad."

By BRUCE LOWTHER

The tensions of travelling and playing concerts make a pianist's life an artificial existence, says Glenn Gould of Toronto. But it's a good living and it has a future.

Only 23, he is regarded as Canada's greatest pianist and the reasons why will be realized when he plays Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra in the Royal theatre Sunday and Monday.

To keep up the pace, Mr. Gould has a bag-full of pills

temporarily, stimulants "to keep going" and sedatives fast and slow.

He has "a list of chiropractors" in Canada, and usually visits one before each concert. Like many pianists, he soaks his hands in hot water for half an hour before each concert. Because he suffers from inflammation of hand muscles, he wears "two and sometimes three pairs of gloves outdoors from September to June," and has a specially knitted pair of mittens for practice.

"I don't enjoy the business of being a concert performer," Mr. Gould admitted here yesterday. "There are children of nature in the piano-playing world whom I envy because they treat it as a day-to-day business."

In Victoria for the first time, he is looking forward to release of his first records, Bach's "Goldberg Variations," next month. He was the first Canadian artist ever signed by Columbia, and will make more records soon.

But mainly his future will be composition. A quartet for strings which took him more than two years to compose will be premiered in Montreal next month, and Mr. Gould is planning a chamber concerto and an opera, the latter for television.

A student of the piano for 19 years, his first concert was with the Toronto Symphony at the age of 14.

He admits the prodigy status, "but my parents didn't exploit me... I might have enjoyed travelling more than I do now. It was a good way of missing school."

$1,000-a-Month Jobs Luring Scores of Air Force Flyers

OTTAWA (CP) — Scores of aircrew have left or want to leave the air force, RCAF officers say privately.

The chief trouble seems to be pay. A civilian pilot flying the northern airlift to radar stations makes about three times as much as an RCAF flier.

Lucrative flying jobs, paying as much as $1,000 a month, are available to aircrew in civvy street.

Officials have said that resupply of the northern radar lines will provide plenty of work for Canadian airlines for years to come.

Air force officers say they believe an increase in flying pay would go far toward solving the problem of keeping trained fliers in the RCAF.

TRAINING COST LOST

One said recently that it is ridiculous to spend $65,000 to train a pilot and then let him go because he isn't given enough flying pay.

Last May, the defence department said in a Commons return that the RCAF fell short of its aircrew needs. The air force requirement in 1954 was "somewhat in excess of 900" and actual enrollment was 885. During the year, 409 officers qualified as aircrew—all aircrew except flight engineers are commissioned—and 151 left the air force.

An RCAF flying officer receives basic pay of $230 a month compared with $259.36 for a first lieutenant, the equivalent rank, in the United States Air Force.

A bigger difference comes in flying pay, which is extra to basic pay. A flying officer on an RCAF operation squadron receives $30 a month flying pay compared to about $160 for a USAF first lieutenant.

When the Second World War came along he was turned down because of weak eyesight but worked as his skilled trade.

Finally he got the chance to go to university. He had no help financially. He planned to work his way through.

The second interruption came when he was in a serious motorcycle accident after he started college. That took an other year and some of his physical strength.

But he kept at it. In 1951 he graduated as a mechanical engineer from the University of B.C. It had taken six years and there was still a long way to go before he was to reach the status of professional engineer.

With his new knowledge and his old skills, Mr. Packford worked in engineering jobs—with a trailer manufacturer in Vancouver, an engineering inspection firm, and the provincial government public works department.

Then after four years he submitted his thesis to the association and applied for certification.

Six weeks ago he was notified that he had been accepted. A headache and slight fever that day somewhat dulled his joy.

HIT BY FOLIO

The next day he was fighting for breath in an iron lung. But he partially recovered. Now he is out of the iron lung and doctors say he will walk again.

Usually new members of the engineers' association are registered at a group banquet. The group, under Dr. H. C. Gunning, president, will make an exception tonight and register Mr. Packford in hospital.

The new engineer is married and has two children. He and his wife Bernice, also studying at UBC a few years ago, were married in 1950. The children are Leah, 3, and Nathan, seven months.

Victory Won By Tenacity And Courage

Six weeks ago A. C. Packford of Victoria learned he had attained a lifelong ambition.

The same day he was struck down by polio.

Tonight at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, convalescing after weeks in an iron lung, Mr. Packford will be certified by the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C.

The simple ceremony will mark the end of nine years of tenacity and courage.

Mr. Packford, like his five brothers in Victoria, learned a trade in the 30's. He became a skilled machinist.

But that wasn't enough. He went to night school and studied industrial arts and learned enough to qualify as an instructor in that field.

But his dream was to be a professional engineer. There was no short cut. But there was a delay.

Doctor Hater Hurls Bombs; Two Killed, Three Injured

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)

Two leading Brisbane doctors were killed and two others and a horse trainer were injured Thursday when 39-year-old Karl Kast went on a shooting and bomb-throwing rampage in an office building.

Police said Kast, who killed himself after his outburst of vengeance, apparently held a grudge against the doctors because they refused to give him a compensation certificate for an alleged injury.

Kast carried with him a suitcase full of gelignite sticks in water piping into the lobby of the building.

Victim No. 1 was George Boland, a Brisbane horse trainer, who was passing through the foyer. He grabbed a bomb in an attempt to put out the fuse and it exploded, tearing away both his hands.

Victim No. 2 was Dr. Michael Gallagher, 35. Kast shot and critically wounded him with a .45-calibre pistol in his office.

Victim No. 3 was Dr. Arthur Meehan, 65, whose office was about 100 yards away. Meehan was shot dead.

Victim No. 4 was Dr. Andrew Murray, 46. Kast placed his suitcase outside Dr. Murray's door, told a waiting patient "this is my affair—keep out of it," and then fatally wounded Dr. Murray with several shots.

Victim No. 5 was Dr. John Lahz, 56. The killer carried his suitcase up to Lahz's office, but the doctor, alerted by the shooting in the other offices, grappled with Kast and threw him aside as he touched off one of his home-made bombs.

Faure Wins Election Issue But Faces Party Expulsion

PARIS (UP)—President Rene

Coty last night signed a decree dissolving the national assembly and France will vote for a new assembly on New Year's Day.

Informal sources said, the decree dissolving the assembly five months ahead of time will be published today in the official journal and will be dated effective then, it was reported.

The decree would virtually rule out the possibility that the assembly would meet before it is officially dissolved to vote on electoral reforms and consider a censure motion to force Premier Edgar Faure to resign.

The Socialists and Faure's own Radical Socialists had demanded such a session.

But Faure faced expulsion from his party for forcing the new elections. The Radical party steering committee voted 19 to 8 to kick him out and the executive committee was expected to confirm the action.

Faure neatly turned the tables in the assembly which had sought to vote him out of office for favoring early elections. He invoked a constitutional provision unused for 78 years to order the assembly dissolved instead of making elections mandatory within a month of the dissolution.

Politicians all over France were aroused by the premier's manoeuvre, and none was more furious than ex-premier Pierre Mendes-France, a former friend of Faure's who now dominates the radical party.

It was Mendes-France who called the steering committee into session yesterday, after printing a blistering attack on the premier in L'Express, organ of his radical faction.

Minister Will Probe Housing in Kitimat

An on-the-spot investigation of the present housing situation at Kitimat will be made Dec. 20 by J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs.

"It will be an informal inquiry of a fact-finding nature," he said yesterday.

The move has been ordered by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black following calls for investigations into alleged high-price, sub-standard housing being erected at the aluminum centre.

CCF MLA Frank Howard, who represents the riding, recently called for a royal commission into the situation.

Mr. Brown will hold a public meeting at Kitimat on the evening of Dec. 20 and will return here the next day—if transportation is not interrupted—to report his findings.

Sharett in Canada To Shop for Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — Israel is seeking arms from Canada, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett told a press conference here Thursday.

Michael Comay, Israeli ambassador to Canada, said at the same time that his country is not trying to obtain large amounts of military supplies from Canada.

Israel has been trying to obtain arms from the West, particularly the United States, since the Soviet bloc began shipping arms to Egypt and other Arab countries.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said recently that Canada screens all requests for arms, consulting her allies. Any arms sold were defensive, such as anti-aircraft guns. In the past, Canada has sold small amounts of arms to Israel.

Mr. Sharett said Canada could help the situation in the Middle East by seeing that the balance of arms was not dangerously upset and, if it were upset, to try to redress the imbalance as far as possible.

Mr. Sharett, here at the invitation of the Canadian government, conferred with Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson and called on Governor-General Vincent Massey. A dinner was given in his honor Thursday by Mr. Pearson. He will leave today for New York.

Mexico Buys Cattle Here

MEXICO CITY (UP) — The government announced Thursday that it will buy 4,000 head of Holstein cattle from Canada, worth over $500,000, to bolster the Mexican livestock industry and create new sources of income for farmers.

Officials said the cattle will be sold to Mexican ranchers on an easy payments plan.

The government is spending a total of about $6,000,000 in its program to increase livestock production and improve the herds.

Keen Civic Contests Assured

ONE can take it as evidence of growth and a renewal of interest in public affairs that there will be a contest for nearly every municipal office in the Greater Victoria area this year, as a result of the filing of official nominations yesterday. The exceptions are the return by acclamation of the reeve of Oak Bay and school trustees in most areas. In every other department in the four municipalities concerned there will be spirited election tussles among a plurality of candidates offering. This is a good sign. It implies that the electors will turn out with the same spirit to vote Greater Victoria will be the gainer all round.

The spotlight in the municipal polls which will be held next week centres on the chief offices; the mayoralty contest in Victoria and the reeveships in Saanich and Esquimalt.

In the City, 12 council candidates are standing for four seats; three candidates for the single police commissionership; with a straight two-man contest for the mayoralty. Two school trustees were elected by acclamation in Victoria. There will be no plebiscites or money-by-laws in the city. This paper, which has made no secret of its dissatisfaction with the administration of city affairs, welcomes this expectation that the issues concerned will now be thoroughly canvassed. There are important decisions to be faced, and much need of new blood if Victoria is to realize its opportunities and go ahead.

Saanich likewise will have one of the liveliest contests in years. There will be a three-man battle for the reeveship; 10 candidates in the field for three two-year council seats, and three candidates for the single term; three candidates for the single police commissionership; and a $220,000 waterworks by-law.

In Esquimalt there will be a two-man tussle for the reeveship; six candidates for three council seats, but no special references. School trustees and a police commissioner were elected in Esquimalt by acclamation.

In spite of the acclamation for the reeveship conceded yesterday, Oak Bay will have a spirited election for three other types of office. Six Oak Bay candidates are standing for three council seats; two trustees candidates for one school vacancy, and three candidates for the single police commissionership.

In view of this marked revival of interest in local affairs those hundred by acclamation yesterday are entitled to the congratulations of the community. Public interest will now switch to the active contests. Victoria's mayoralty battle at the centre of interest in the City's election and the reeveship contest in Saanich where a public works program has backfired, would have ensured lively elections in any event. The plurality of choice offering for most elective seats is another guarantee of timely discussion of civic affairs.

Sidney's Harbor Needs

FEDERAL Public Works Minister Winters' visit to Sidney this week and the representations made to him by local organizations should help towards a better understanding of Sidney's port problems. It is a pity though, that Mr. Winters could not have seen this fast-growing town and its inadequate harbor facilities at the peak of the holiday season. A long look at Sidney, in, say, July or August when the ferries are running packed and American and Canadian cruising yachts arriving in a steady stream would give the minister a much more impressive view of the needs than can be gained from any examination of statistics.

However, he has the figures, has seen the meagre accommodation the port has to offer, and thus is in a better position to decide what improvements or new works should be undertaken by the Dominion to enable the best use to be made of Sidney's splendid tourist opportunities.

The briefs presented by the Sidney village commission and chamber of commerce propose the construction of a breakwater, improvements to wharves to make them usable in all weathers and better protection for visiting pleasure craft, which bring many thousands of Americans to Vancouver Island every summer in addition to the rapidly increasing inflow by ferry. While all these improvements are demonstrably necessary now to accommodate present heavy seasonal traffic, they are also a pre-requisite for the hoped-for year-round operation of the Sidney-Anacortes ferry and for the establishment of ferry service between Sidney and the British Columbia mainland. There are convincing indications that once the Dominion provides the needed facilities Sidney's port traffic could be doubled at least. Without them ferry companies are unlikely to favor winter operation. For that matter the present wharves fall short of requirements even in summer.

Sidney's requests appear to be entirely reasonable from an economic point of view, and also in the light of the extensive new breakwater and float facilities which the Dominion has completed for the convenience of sport fishermen at Cowichan Bay, where tourist traffic potentialities are scarcely comparable to those at Sidney.

They Played Their Part

A PENSIONER citizen of the province made a point seldom mentioned when he spoke this week of the plight of people who exist on the statutory pension allowance of $40 per month. If in fact they can possibly exist at all on such a sum. In B.C. of course this allowance may be supplemented by a means-test bonus of $15 per month but even so the total amount is pitifully inadequate where prices are at a skyscraper level by comparison. His claim was simply that Canada's 800,000 pensioners had played a manifold part in building up this nation; on that basis alone they deserved some consideration.

The Gordon economic commission, before whom this point was made, is unlikely to overlook the implications of such presentation. Every nation perforce builds on itself; the present is possible only because of the past. The foundations for the prosperity of 1955 were laid by all those who have gone before. It is not given to every man, nor is it possible, to provide in his working lifetime—especially a lifetime spent in the main before superannuation schemes and the like—for his old age. It is a sad commentary therefore that in the twilight of his years, in an era of boundless expansion and economic upthrust, he might be condemned to eke out an existence on $40 per month.

How this can be done is a mystery to more fortunately placed individuals. The senior citizen presenting the pensions brief to the Gordon commission said it meant "low starvation," and this is a term not easily to be denied. In the flush of high wages and a standard of living that is the envy of many countries probably little thought is given to the lot of pensioners of this class. The question forms part of the economic future which the commission is expected to assess and chart, however, and it is not one that can be shrugged off. So long as they live off the pensioners are a part of the nation they helped to develop and they have a legitimate claim on the national conscience.

Interpreting the News

Mr. Gardiner's Conundrum

(From Winnipeg Free Press)

ON Wednesday night, Mr. Gardiner, the minister of agriculture, is reported to have repeated before an audience in Vernon, B.C., his argument that Canada has no butter surplus. "When you hear people say we have a butter surplus," he said, "don't believe them." He explained that Canada "has just enough butter to keep the distribution pipeline full and a reserve to prevent speculators running up the price to 85 cents a pound."

On Thursday, one of this newspaper's Ottawa correspondents learned from federal government trade officials that more than 7,000,000 pounds of Canadian butter have been sold to a Dutch importing firm for delivery to East Germany.

After reading Mr. Gardiner's statement, the public may be forgiven for wondering where this 7,000,000 pounds of butter came from. It could not be part of a surplus, because Mr. Gardiner says there is no surplus. There is always the possibility, of course, that when the minister talks about a "full distribution pipeline" he envisages a pipeline that serves not only Canada but which reaches well behind the Iron Curtain.

The Dutch firm is reported to have paid 37 cents a pound for the butter. The 21-cent-a-pound difference between this price and the 58 cents a pound paid for it by the agricultural prices support board came out of the pockets of the taxpayers of Canada. They will be wondering, not only where this butter came from, but how the government can sell it at 37 cents a pound to a Dutch firm for resale in a Communist country, while they are still paying 63 and 64 cents a pound for the butter they buy in their local stores.

Taxpayers are no more likely to swallow Mr. Gardiner's statement about a "reserve to prevent speculators running the price up to 85 cents a pound" than they are to fall for his "full distribution pipeline" theory. They can see for themselves that a "reserve" does indeed exist. And it may, as the minister says, prevent speculators from pushing up the price of butter. But it very clearly does not prevent the government from pushing the price down to 37 cents a pound to customers other than Canadians.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wags of cabbage and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A YEAR or so ago, perhaps you will remember, Life magazine ran a full-page picture of two brawny kilted men wrestling.

Sport was not the theme, dear me no. The intent was to disclose the kilt's secret, one that has agitated minds for centuries—what does the kilt wear beneath?

And what is it? In this case, dually, a little cute white pantie.

I should hope so, I hear you mutter under your breath, and if the kiltie is wrestling, why yes. But otherwise?

Ask your neighbor who happens to have a boy in the Canadian Scottish.

Unless he's going to the tartan ball tonight or dancing at the Highland Games next summer, the kiltie had probably paraded at the Armoury as a kiltie soldier should.

Says:

The kilt is a man's wear, you see, not some fancy frill like a lady's petticoat. Yea, even though once a peculiar army board termed it a "peculiar clothing."

The kilt, or rather what may or may not be worn below it, is the topic of discussion in the letters column of the Ottawa Journal. Not that kiltie is a daily scene attraction this side of the Atlantic except in Nova Scotia, but still...

The views are interesting. For instance, one lady, a newcomer, says:

"I do not know yet whether your soldiers officially wear anything under their kilts, but when they dance in public I have seen them to have dark blue gymnastic pants, which does not to me please the eye very much."

Your girl pipers, too, when they are dancing, can be seen to wear short navy knickers. They must, of course, wear something, but it would be much better white, to be pretty and pleasing, or the same tartan as their kilts, not to be distracting.

"For men, though, it is not so necessary, unless they are dancing or perhaps if the wind blows well."

Especially when the wind blows well, don't you think?

Adds another correspondent, a man, who would campaign for the education of would-be kilt wearers and their parents:

"Once a boy has experienced the comfort of the kilt when worn correctly, he would never again wish to wear it on top of a superfluous garment. Furthermore, he would, for the rest of his life, grudge every moment spent in trousers."

M'mmm, I wonder.

But a subject of this nature being what it is, what the women think is important. Heed then this lady:

"In principle I entirely agree with your male correspondents who are against the wearing of knickers underneath, since this is, presumably, a mere modern custom. But we do live in a modern world, and I doubt whether it would really be practicable to dispense altogether with knickers, especially in the cities."

"No, regrettable though it may be, modern youth—at least in the person of my son—insists on wearing trousers with the kilt. But I think they, too, should be of tartan."

I think so myself.

Another male advocates more wear by everybody of the kilt, to bring a touch of glamour and color to men's fashions. (Women, remember, who sport the tartan as in Victoria, wear skirts not kilts.)

This bold soul takes precautions himself, however, as witness:

"Whatever is worn beneath the kilt for many activities is still far more comfortable than trousers; and I for one shall continue to wear the same underclothes with the kilt as with any other every-day garb."

He is rather mortified, nevertheless, for he protests:

"Really, sir, I never thought I would find myself writing to the press about my underwear."

The clincher to all this, though, unless it be the kilt itself when worn with a pyjama drape at the back, is the lady who writes to say:

"It is most terrible to see under a kilt—a loose shirt tail!"

Amen to that.

Civil Defence or 'Panic Party'?

By W. BERKELEY MONTEITH

The writer, a Victoria barrister and collector, is a former major of Royal Canadian Artillery.

IN the local press of Nov. 23 there appeared an item entitled "Danger to City in War Stressed" and also "Evacuation 'Only Hope,'" and quoting at some length remarks attributed to Alderman M. H. Mooney. The item in question undoubtedly has alarmed a considerable proportion of the population of Greater Victoria. I wish to discuss the necessity for causing such alarm.

If Ald. Mooney is correctly reported and if his reported remarks in turn correctly reflect the thinking and attitude of "civil defence experts at Ottawa" then, by implication at least, the population of Victoria is given to understand the following:

1. That Victoria is on a direct air route from the north to major western U.S. cities.

2. That this fact places Victoria in an extremely dangerous position in the event of war (presumably as a target for an atomic air bombing attack).

3. That at the most four hours' notice of possible attack can be expected.

4. That it is the considered opinion of the so-called experts (with whom Ald. Mooney must now be associated) that the "only hope" in the event of warning that enemy planes are headed in the general direction of this city is a wholesale evacuation of the population to a point at least 100 miles distant on the only possible road—the Island Highway.

If this is the correct inference to be drawn from the remarks quoted, then it is the counsel of despair and will be so regarded by all of those sufficiently informed to draw their own conclusions. Quite apart from this, however, the action suggested is arrant nonsense, which is bad enough, and moreover dangerous nonsense, which is even worse. That, I admit, is strong language and I may expect to be called upon to substantiate it.

A strategic air bombing attack (A or H) can only be justified in the scheme of an attacker when it tends to achieve one or both of two results:

1. To render useless or to damage military or industrial works or installations of major importance to the war-making potentialities of the country attacked.

2. The slowing down of military supplies and equipment by bombing the civil population of industrial centres. As a corollary to the slowing down process is the stifling of the spirit of resistance by inflicting casualties and suffering on the civil population.

The only installation of any true military significance in or about Victoria is the government drydock at Esquimalt, and this can scarcely be considered important in comparison with, for example, the smelter at Trail and the aluminum plant at Kitimat.

Victoria is not an industrial city and such few industries as are located here are from the military viewpoint, of relative insignificance.

From the viewpoint of an enemy planning an atomic air raid to weaken the war effort of this country, Victoria presents a target which, on balance of probable loss to the attacking force, would be distinctly unprofitable and unlikely of selection.

But this is only half the story. Even were Victoria a most probable target, the advice to evacuate would be equally destructive to the entire proper goal of civil defence.

Evacuation, used as a military term, connotes an orderly departure from a position; but to counsel a civil population of over 100,000 souls—men, women and children, including invalids, cripples, idiots and criminals—to achieve in a period of four hours at the most a distance of 100 miles, by any means available, and over a single road, and all that at the bare threat of an attack; is nothing less than an invitation to panic and chaos. Having taken to the hills (for there would be nowhere else to go) how could this panic-stricken mob be fed or housed? The probable fact that no raid on Victoria resulted following warning would afford small consolation to the families of the casualties from starvation and exposure resulting from the exodus.

It must be a source of intense satisfaction to any potential enemy of this country to know that, thanks to the advice and direction of the "experts" and unless that advice is radically changed, the industry in Canada will grind to a halt upon a mere tinkle of alarm and the urban population will bolt for the bush.

When the German armies invaded France in 1940 the civil population took to the roads and not only completely blocked all traffic and rendered all movement of troops a virtual impossibility, but also infected the troops with their own panic, thus rendering them an easy prey to the advancing enemy. Panic is an infectious disease, easy to start, almost impossible to control once started, and with an enduring result on its victims.

Civil defence, if its name means anything, is directed to the maintenance of that part of the war effort of the country which is not entrusted to the armed forces. Its objects can best be achieved by taking all possible steps to enable the civil population to keep the wheels of industry turning while sustaining as few casualties as may be in attaining that end. The avoidance of civil casualties at all cost is to surrender tamely to the enemy and negates the very concept of "defence."

Reports of tests made with nuclear fission bombs indicate that with proper training and cover, individuals can safely survive a bomb explosion at ranges considerably shorter than was formerly thought possible, and whatever may be the radio-active effect from the resultant "outfall" it cannot be escaped by running away.

It would seem that the civil defence authorities, in this country at least, hug the picture of Hiroshima and Nagasaki so closely that they are unable to see and evaluate the magnificent examples of London and other large cities subjected to bombing in the late war.

Casualties in the event of an atomic air raid would be heavy—certainly much heavier than heretofore sustained under ordinary bombing attack, but unless a realistic approach is taken and the counsel of flight abandoned, then those responsible for civil defence should display sufficient honesty to change the name of the organization to "Panic Party."

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLAER

EVERY one of us who does not own a car should be given a rebate on all taxes, should be equipped with a pass which would entitle him or her to 10 per cent off the cost of everything he buys, and should in every way possible be compensated for the money he has to spend out of every dollar he makes in order to provide transportation for those with cars.

For who pays for all the lordly private transportation for all these Toms, Dicks and Harries, and all these Lucies, Marias and Ednas? We all do. Then, in simple justice, why should those who haven't got it have to pay for it?

The simplest understanding of economics should make it obvious that those who motor have far more transportation than they need. Out of those streams of cars we see swarming downtown in the morning and back home at night, possibly 70 per cent have one man in each of them. The majority of the cars are five-passenger jobs. Therefore, our public streets are cluttered with a traffic that is four-fifths empty.

About 90 per cent of those same swarms of cars we see heading downtown stand idle from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. five days a week. Let somebody good at arithmetic figure out that one. In the year of 365 days, how many days does this marvellous transportation function?

Next: how does the average car owner afford to own such costly, inefficient and largely idle means of transportation which, in cost and upkeep, far outdoes the coach and four that lords and ladies employed a hundred years ago?

He affords it out of his wages or salary, which are charged to the cost of production of everything we make, to the cost of all services.

Happily, those who don't own motor cars get the same wages or salary as those who do own cars. At least, there is no reduction in wages or salary if we don't own cars. So I have to withdraw the opening proposition that the carless be given a rebate on taxes. It is only the poor and those below the wage line at which cars can be bought and those in particularly straitened circumstances who have a right to be taken the cost of living that has to support so much empty, idle and irresponsible transportation in this utterly fantastic economy in which we at present maintain our balance like birds in the air.

While the Citizens Suffer

TWO-and-a-half-year-old Metropolitan Toronto hopes to have its scattered police and fire forces unified by 1957. Most people in Toronto and similar areas in Canada will wonder why such an obvious and urgent step should take so long.

A dozen separate fire and police forces, each with its own boss and control centre, operating in what is a single geographical area, can't hope to be efficient. Taxpayers pay far too much and get far too little in this kind of service.

If citizens had their way complete merger of fire and police forces would be the very first item in any metropolitan plan. But petty politics in the Toronto areas and in other similar areas throughout Canada always stand in the way. A lot of patronage and synthetic civic dignity are involved.

In the meantime the citizens suffer.

The minister was making slow progress urging his church board to approve the spending of $200 for a new chandelier. Finally he asked rather heatedly of one adamant member:

"Just why, Henry, do you persist in your disapproval?"

"For two reasons," said Henry. "First, $200 is too damned much; and second, I doubt if anyone in the whole church knows how to play a chandelier."

Letters to the Editor

Indians No Show

Like Mr. D. S. Turner I, too, read Chief Thunderbird's letter in the Colonist suggesting an old-time Indian village at Goldstream park.

It seems a good idea until you start thinking about it. If this is the best we can do for our first Canadians it is about time we forgot about them altogether.

Surely the main object should be to help the Indian peoples to become assimilated into our national life, not segregate them still further by presenting them as yet another "tourist attraction."

I have lived near an Indian reservation in the interior for several summers and seen the hopeless results of this

There are, of course, many who argue that the Indian people are not ready for this change. They cannot conceive that the Indian himself has anything to give — only that he should receive "the treatment" from the white man.

I have also lived in the Kootenays and seen this train of thought worked out in practice as regards the Doukhobors. It is a pretty miserable spectacle.

Sleep on the Doorstep

As we all know, there is at present a good number of drivers driving without valid drivers' licences.

On Nov. 28, 1955, I went to the motor vehicle branch to obtain a new licence, as mine expired Nov. 29.

The gentleman there said, "I can't renew your licence; it doesn't expire until tomorrow."

What are people supposed to do? Sleep there until the licence expires or drive devoid of drivers' licences?

Off-Street Parking

We read and hear a lot about creating off-street parking lots. The city centre has few outlets for this purpose.

We have a market place, bringing in little revenue and used only a few hours per week, mostly by growers living in Saanich. A less valuable location could be found to replace same.

Could not the B.C. Electric take over and turn it into a central bus depot? — doing away with all stops in the city centre, thereby creating more parking places for private cars, bringing in more revenue to the city. (There might also be room for parking cars, too, with revenue.)

The old Brackman Ker building could be remodelled into good off-street parking.

This would mean building a new fire hall and police station, which could be combined in one.

This may be an interesting subject for the mayor and council next year. Furthermore, the public must adjust itself to present-day conditions, by walking a block to shelter and comfort to board the bus.

Against Chlorination

Mention was made in the Nov. 30 Colonist of the move on the part of our mayor to de-chlorinate our drinking water. Many people are in favor of such a move and we hope our mayor will have as much success in this regard as with the preservation of the trees which serve a greater purpose than merely decorating the landscape as potential saw-logs.

Apart from disliking the taste and smell of chlorine in drinking water (which many people claim they don't notice), I find the following statements made relative to chlorine by writers who seem to be highly qualified to do so:

Chlorine was the deadly poison gas used in the First World War. Are we to believe that a highly diluted quantity has no adverse effect on the body — that it just kills the germs and that's all?

That chlorine's chemical reaction with galvanized iron pipes produces a certain percentage of hydrochloric acid which becomes an effective metal solvent.

A Canadian scientist wrote two works on his research relative to the cumulative effect of chlorine and other chemicals when added in minute quantities to the drinking water which resulted in serious chronic degenerative diseases.

Even so, I should prefer chlorination to fluoridation if it came to a choice between the two. Much has been said regarding the latter by both sides. No one can yet prophesy what would happen to the body subjected to small quantities of sodium fluoride (artificial fluorine, inorganic) for a lifetime.

No one wants to be hurried to an untimely grave, even if in death his smile showed teeth with an artificially induced enamel!

Alberni Area Possible Site Of Gigantic Power Project

Detailed studies into the feasibility of a huge hydro-electric development in the Alberni district will be undertaken by B.C. Power Commission engineers.

Commission spokesmen denied, however, that construction of a $20,000,000 power project was being planned.

That's pure speculation," an official said yesterday.

It was stated that engineers had completed a preliminary study of the potentialities of the Somass river and tributaries and it was felt that more detailed surveys were justified.

Details of the surveys to be undertaken will be explained to Alberni valley residents by commission officials Monday.

Several alternative schemes are possible in the Somass watershed but it has not yet been decided which one, if any, will be followed.

Nothing Sacred?

Pipeline Contract Awarded

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP) — First contract for actual pipeline construction on the $150,000,000 line to bring gas from the Peace River area to the coast has been awarded by Westcoast Transmission Company.

The contract was awarded Dutton Williams Bros. Ltd. of Calgary for the laying of pipe between Taylor flat on the Peace River to Azouetta Lake, a distance of 120 miles.

Construction camps are being established near the confluence of the Peace and Pine rivers.

Pipe for the northern end of the line will be delivered early in January at railhead via Edmonton.

Westcoast has purchased almost one-third of its 30-inch diameter pipe from Britain at a cost of $12,000,000.

The pipeline, to carry gas from fields in northern British Columbia and Alberta, will run from the Peace River area to Sumas, B.C., on the B.C.-Washington state border, a distance of 650 miles. Feeder lines will take it to B.C. communities and into the north-west United States. The line is scheduled to be finished by 1967.

The contest will be judged by internationally known authors.

Logger Thrown By Mad Horse, Drowns in Lake

LAKE COWICHAN—A freak accident is presumed to have caused the death of a logger, within sight of his 18-year-old son.

RCMP said Hewitt, about 39, was riding one of two horses being used to pull logs from the lake when the animals went over their depth, panicked and threw him.

The horses drowned and their bodies were recovered. Dragging operations for Hewitt's body will be resumed today.

A Royal Canadian Navy frogman may be requested to assist.

Police said the son, Douglas, was on the shore assisting his father when the accident occurred about 7 p.m. near Honeybrook Bay.

Harness of the team of horses snagged on a floating, partly submerged log when the horses panicked. Police

Employment Picture Bad

DUNCAN—The employment picture in November was the worst in this district for many years, due to a combination of bad weather and a labor dispute between the operating engineers and operators of three mills in the district.

Some 950 men were idled for periods from two to 12 working days, according to the national employment office.

The weather also brought a complete stop to construction work. The picture for construction workers for 1956, however, is bright. The report lists the $600,000 school building program, a possible start on a new hospital, and the Crofton pulp mill.

In spite of unfavorable weather, activity in real estate remains at a high level. Several new subdivisions in the immediate vicinity of Duncan are proposed.

Turkeys Guide Hunter

NANAIMO—Allard Waddell, 40, of Ladner, lost in the woods for 18 hours on a hunting expedition, beat his own way back to safety yesterday by heading for the ruckus set up by a flock of turkeys on a Lantzville farm.

Waddell walked out of the bush after an RCMP search party and a police dog had started looking for him.

Another search is planned today for a deer shot by the hunter before he became lost.

Waddell went hunting Wednesday morning in the Pleasant valley area, seven miles north of here, with Jack Ross of Lantzville.

The two separated and Waddell shot his deer. By the time he got through dressing his prize darkness had fallen and he was unable to find his way. He spent the night in a shelter which he made.

Ross, meanwhile, returned home, believing his companion had preceded him. He and his father went back into the valley and lit a beacon fire which Waddell didn't see.

Waddell was none the worse for his ordeal.

NANAIMO—Ald. Bob Fawdry announced yesterday that the B.C. government has taken on the responsibility of curbing and draining the trans-provincial highway that runs through Nanaimo.

Ald. Fawdry said: "I am indeed indebted to Dr. Larry Giovando, MLA for Nanaimo."

Following the last council meeting, Ald. Fawdry took up the question with Dr. Giovando.

The MLA got in touch with the deputy minister of highways, Evan Jones, who advised that his department would take care of the curbing and draining.

LADYSMITH—Stephen Findlay was appointed chairman of the Christmas lighting and decorating contest for 1955 sponsored by Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce, with power to add to his committee. He will report to next Monday's meeting, outlining his plans following a general survey. He was authorized to approach city council to seek its co-operation.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

On the next page is a letter from Ed Ash. It's a letter of protest about the manner in which Royal Athletic park is often denied to city sports organizations and the charges levied on those occasions when the parks administrator sees fit to permit its use. Ash, who is primarily interested in baseball, and all others who are backing outdoor sports in the city, has a lot about which to complain.

When the city started to do something for sport and it could start right in with a better approach towards the problem of playing fields. There aren't enough playing fields in the area and the situation is a sad one. Indeed when the use of the only first-class field in the city is denied as often it is, on many occasions only a few hours before game time. No sport can hope to be self-supporting under those conditions and one of the reasons that we are always getting appeals to the public is the attitude of city officials about playing fields, particularly Royal Athletic park.

Games are cancelled because the parks administrator is afraid that the turf might be damaged. There are, of course, times when it is so wet that there would be excessive damage, but unless the damage would be excessive, games should go on as scheduled.

Playing fields are worthless unless they are used, and their primary function is not to grow a good crop of grass. They are meant to be used, and if damage to the turf results, so what? It can be repaired, and even if it is a bit scruffy at the end of the season that's much preferable to a fine turf which is fine because no one was allowed to use it. Royal Athletic park is being wasted because of the jealously-guarded turf and the doomed-to-failure try to make it show a profit.

That some charge should be levied against teams using the park for practice sessions is fair enough, but it should be held to an absolute minimum and there should be a lot more co-operation than is given now in many instances. Royal Athletic park will probably never show a profit so why not get something back by making it more available, even if it costs a bit more? After all, a city which can spend about $17,000 to erect a pool for a few scores of model yacht enthusiasts should be in a position not to have to worry about losses in the operation of playing fields or the cost of perhaps having to replace Royal Athletic park turf.

Whatever way you look at it, the only answer is to divorce playing fields from the parks department and let one fellow grow his grass and flowers and the other see to it that our amateur athletes have a place to play. Perhaps a candidate for civic office is in favor of something like that. If he is, use your ballot for sure.

Random Harvest

Any way you look at it, Saturday's East-West all-star football game is an anti-climax, coming as it does just after the Grey Cup game. It may turn out to be quite a success, but if it doesn't, an idea for the Shrine game would be to have the Grey Cup finalists meet in a rematch before the start of the next season. That would pack any stadium. . . . Wednesday night's welterweight title fight between Carmen Basilio and Tony DeMarco was worth a complete payment on the TV set, and a bow to Basilio, who proved himself a real champion. He may, however, have trouble with Johnny Saxton if Saxton fights like he did a few weeks back against Tiger Jones. . . . It's almost certain that Harry Wipperfurth, starry defenceman of the Peterborough Trailermen, will play his lacrosse on Vancouver Island next season. Nanaimo Timmermans seem to have the inside track at the moment but the Shamrocks haven't given up by any means. The club which can offer the best job prospects will probably get itself a real lacrosse player. . . . It's too bad that such a fine movement as Little League Baseball should be hurt by troubles which led to the firing of founder Carl Stotz, commissioner. No matter who is right in the dispute, Little League will be hurt. . . . George Blanda, quarterback of the Chicago Bears, has made the point after touchdown 136 consecutive times, amazing even in these days of the automatic point. . . . Bill Carse, former NHL and WHL star, is the ice-maker at Penticton's Granite Curling Club. . . . UCLA not only picked an all-players team this season but invited the 11 players to fly to the UCLA Junior pro at university expense. All of which caused coach Red Sanders to express fears that UCLA opponents will go all out against the Bruins next season in the hope of getting a bid for the junior pro. . . . McDougald, former Victoria second-baseman who has been invaluable to the New York Yankees because of his ability to play either the keystone sack or third base in major league style, is expected to solve the Yankees' shortstop problem next season. Gil was used at the new position during the last 10 games of the Japanese tour and manager Casey Stengel was satisfied. McDougald, probably saved third-baseman Andy Carey's job with his versatility. Carey was up for trade but will now be needed at the hot corner.

GUESSING DEPARTMENT: Rangers in tonight's NHL game; Edmonton, Winnipeg and to see if it'll help Vancouver in the WHL. Batting average to date: At bat 368, hits 238, percentage .701.

Tiremen Extend Lead By Trimming Nomads

Dickinson and Dunn, ran his undefeated streak in the senior "B" men's basketball league to five games last night by posting a 62-45 victory over the winless Nomads at Central Junior High school. Norm Baker's Tiremen were given a battle by the cellar-dwelling Nomads, who trailed by only four points, 29-25, at half time. But the winners rapped in 11 unanswered points in the late stages of the second half to win in a walk after leading by a close 40-35 margin. Nomads, who started with seven players, were reduced to four men via the foul route before the game ended. In the other two scheduled games, Eagles edged Cordova Bay bantam girls, 24-22, and Eagles' pre-midget girls walloped Cordova Bay, 40-5.

Lead at Stake On Saturday; Bays vs. Blues

James Bay Blues and Oak Bay Wanderers, both undefeated in Victoria Rugby Union first division play, will clash Saturday for the league lead at Macdonald park's lower pitch in one of three matches scheduled.

JBAA Whites and Victoria College, both winless, will clash in the other first division match on the upper pitch at Macdonald park at 2:30. In second division action the powerful Navy XV will meet Victoria College Vikings at HMCS Naden field at 2:30. The Sailors, off to a fine start in their first full season in the second division, are undefeated in two games while College has dropped two straight decisions.

BRENTWOOD HOOP Brentwood senior "C" men will meet Cordova Bay to night in the feature of a three-game Saanich and Suburban Basketball League card at Brentwood.

Squash Stars Display Wizardry

Recognized as three of the top squash players in the world today, the Khan brothers of Pakistan displayed their wizardry at the Victoria Squash Club's Sussex Hotel courts yesterday in what was probably the finest exhibition ever seen here. Hashim, Azim and Rochan Khan are on a two-month tour of the United States and their Victoria appearance marked their only exhibition in a Canadian city. Here, Azim gets ready for a shot while Rochan (left) and Hashim look on. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Brothers from Pakistan Thrill City Squash Fans

By IAN GLENDAY

Three brothers from Pakistan, one of them the English world squash champion for the past five years, thrilled a small but enthusiastic crowd at the Victoria Squash Club's Sussex Hotel courts yesterday with an amazing exhibition of speed, stamina and court wizardry.

What the Choong brothers of Malaysia are to badminton, the brothers from Pakistan are to squash. Hashim Khan, the oldest of the three at 42, has been the world's English singles champion for the past five years. The 23-year-old Azim has been runner-up to his brother for three successive years and it's probably only the greater experience of the remarkable Hashim that has kept his younger brother from reaching the top.

ONLY APPEARANCE Third brother making the two-month tour of the United States is 27-year-old Rochan, a tall, shy athlete who isn't far behind Azim and Hashim in ability. The two exhibition matches yesterday marked the only Canadian appearance for the Pakistanis.

The balding Hashim, acting as the spokesman for the trio although each one of them speaks English quite well, said the tour will end in New York late this month when the American championships are played. Hashim reached the semi-finals of the U.S. championships last year but a leg injury forced him to withdraw from the tournament. The American game, Hashim explained, is quite different to the English game. The ball is smaller and harder, the courts longer and narrower, and the racquets lighter.

START AS YOUTHS All three brothers started playing squash, which is extremely popular in Pakistan, as youths. Hashim singled out Egypt and England as two countries which develop top-flight players and in which he has received his stiffest opposition.

Hashim and Azim battled through a five-game set yesterday afternoon with the champion losing the first game but sweeping the next three in a brilliant demonstration of court mastery. Azim, who possesses all the shots and appears to play a stronger game than Hashim, won the first game, 15-12, but the older brother gradually gained command and had his opponent on the move with his well-placed shots.

Hashim ran out the match, 15-9, 15-10 and 15-9 and showed both a delicate touch and power in methodically cutting down his opponent. He also showed that at 42 he can still cover the court well and had the stamina needed for the half-hour match. The spectators were almost as exhausted from watching the little ball as the players were from chasing it.

Tonight's Game Last Chance For Some Cougars To Stay; Shake-Up Due on Road Trip

Victoria hockey fans at Memorial Arena tonight may be watching the farewell appearance of several of the Cougars. The Cougars don't play at home again until Dec. 13. There'll be some changes made before then unless something totally unexpected happens.

Bogged down in a slump which has seen them manage only three points in eight games, many of the Cougars are understandably in some disfavor with the management as well as with city fans.

General manager Fred Hutchinson makes no secret of his intentions to do something about the situation. "Of course the wolves are out," he said glumly last night. "They have a right to be. It's not losing that hurts so much as how we've looked while losing. I expect there will be something doing not later than Monday night in Winnipeg."

FIRST MOVES MADE Hutchinson was in touch with the parent Boston Bruins on Wednesday and with Hershey Bears, Boston's AHL farm club, twice yesterday. First plans for some switching have been made but weren't quite complete last night.

Just what changes would be made were not divulged. The situation is more than a bit complicated by the fact that the Bruins haven't won in their last nine games and are trailing in the NHL while Hershey is bringing up the rear in the AHL.

It goes without saying that neither Bruins nor Hershey Bears are in position to spare a player. However, it's likely that there will be some player switching in an effort to see if new surroundings won't help some of the players who haven't been able to get started. There is also the chance that the Cougars could call up Howie Hornby, who has been playing steadily for Kamloops in the Okanagan League.

TROUBLESHOOTER SENT In any event, the Cougars will be met in Winnipeg Monday night by Harold "Baldy" Cotton, chief scout of the Bruins. Cotton will watch the Victoria club in Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Regina and, perhaps, act as a third party in any deal with Hershey.

Cougars' slump came at an inopportune time, just before the start of the first of two rugged Prairie invasions. Starting Monday night, the Cougars play six games away from home in eight days while traveling about 4,000 miles, then come home on Tuesday, Dec. 13 for their seventh game in nine days.

It will take a Cougar club at top form to hold its own.

Wager on Dane Brings $5,392 BALTIMORE (AP)—Danish jockey Benny Sorenson rode the winner of the first and second races Thursday at Pimlico to provide a whopping $5,932.26, for $2 daily double payoff.

Sorenson brought home Joymaker, $164 winner of the opening race, then rode Advice, $106.90-winner of the second.

Although no such records are kept, it is believed to be a record payoff for a daily double in which both winners were ridden by the same jockey.

The U.S. record for a daily double is $10,772.40 established by Joy Bet and Merry Caroline at Washington Park Aug. 14, 1939.

Lineup Changed Strathcona XI Hopes For Re-Start Saturday Victoria Strathconas, plagued by bad weather and schedule difficulties since the start of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season, will field a shuffled lineup Saturday in an effort to make their second league start a winning one.

Strathconas host the youthful Vancouver Halecos Saturday afternoon at Royal Athletic park, and coach Willie Hamilton has made three major changes for the match.

HIBBERT DROPS BACK Goaltie Pete Winter will have regular Bill Hope and Ken Hibbert as protection at the full-back positions. Hibbert, a centre-forward, has been dropped back to fullback by Hamilton as one part of the general shake-up.

Bruins Lose Again On Costly Penalty

BOSTON (AP)—Montreal's Jean Beliveau, a Bruins' nemesis, and Maurice "Rocket" Richard scored within a span of 26 seconds in the first period Thursday night as the Canadiens defeated Boston 2-1 despite a wild finish to the National Hockey League game.

Boston, winless in nine games, missed a tying goal in the third period when Don McKenney was offside. Murray Costello's shot from the side of the rink went into the netting but did not count.

With the Bruins shorthanded due to a cross-checking penalty on Vic Stasiuk, Beliveau converted the second poke at his own rebound just beyond the post at 4:47. Beliveau had entered the contest leading the league with 14 goals and 27 points. It was his 10th goal of the season at Boston's expense.

Just 26 seconds later, Richard slammed home a 25-footer into the corner of the net. Lorne Ferguson got Boston's lone tally at 13:51 of the first period on a 35-foot blast.

He's Bottled Up For Six Months

Having slapped his wife, hit her with a telephone pole from the wall, and locked her outside in the snow for two hours, James W. Pratt, 463 Davids, agreed yesterday with the magistrate in Saanich court that perhaps he should go on the interdict list.

Pratt pleaded guilty to a charge of assault. He was placed on suspended sentence, ordered to keep away from liquor for six months and required to post a $500 good behavior bond.

Ottawa Bill Bars Taku Hydro Deal Bennett Charges

Premier W. A. C. Bennett again lashed out at the federal government yesterday as he reasserted his charge that Ottawa was wholly responsible for delaying the $270,000,000 Frobisher-Ventures project at Taku inlet.

The company announced at the Gordon royal commission on the economic future of Canada that it was planned to go ahead with a $50,000,000 project on the Naas river because of the "international situation" surrounding the Taku development.

"Mr. Winters obviously knows nothing about it," Bennett said. "Federal Bill Three has held up the development at Taku inlet."

The bill was designed to block B.C. plans to allow U.S. interests to dam the upper Columbia river for storage purposes.

WORKS TWO WAYS

"If Canada can stop certain projects on the U.S. side which would benefit the U.S. side, it can stop the U.S. side from developing projects which would benefit Canada," he said.

"Are you saying that the U.S. is now taking revenge because Canada blocked the Columbia dam?" a reporter asked.

"I'm saying no such thing," the premier snapped. "An international situation has developed and it's all happened since Bill Three."

Premier Bennett said the Frobisher organization, Canadian, U.S. with federal government backing and was so confident that the project would be put through that they had put up a $2,000,000 deposit.

Murder Suspect 'Was Quite Drunk'

The accused "might have been charged to Robert Holman, 21, Hamilton, died of multiple injuries shortly after the Aug. 20 fight near Ketchikan beach.

William's sister, 19-year-old Shirley, told Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson her brother had consumed "20 bottles of beer and some whisky" on the afternoon of Aug. 20.

"I'm sure he was quite drunk," she said.

She said she heard Holman tell her brother, "I'm going to get you tonight, Graham."

Robert Dale, 18, said Holman called Graham fifty names and then the two argued.

"PRESTONE" Anti-Freeze this fall!

"Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze gives you a warmer, smoother running engine this winter...
a cooler, smoother running engine next summer!

The anti-freeze you buy this fall will have a lot to do with the shape your car's engine will be in next summer. You see, the majority of summer engine overheating problems are caused by incomplete anti-freeze protection against serious engine hazards of winter driving. In other words, a modern car's cooling system needs far more than just freeze-up protection during the cold months ahead to avoid the expense of serious cooling system damage.

"Prestone" Anti-Freeze is the one brand developed to give complete protection. In addition to providing a positive safe-guard against freeze-up and a superior soluble corrosion inhibitor, "Prestone" Anti-Freeze coats the entire surface of the cooling system with a thin, rugged, protective film. This special Polar Film inhibitor protects the cooling system against rust formation, acid action and deterioration.

"Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze keeps your car's cooling system clean and free of rust so your engine can run at more efficient temperatures... operate more smoothly this winter. And, because your engine has complete cold weather protection this winter, it'll be a cooler, smoother running engine... give you more miles per gallon next summer*. So, insist on "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze. You'll be glad this winter and next summer, too.

*For best performance, your car should be filled with "Prestone" Anti-Freeze at the spring and fall tune-ups. It is the water and rust inhibitor as recommended by all automotive authorities.

REMEMBER... there's only one "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze

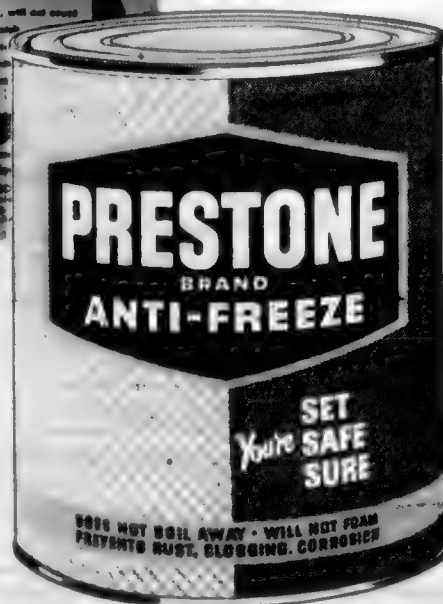

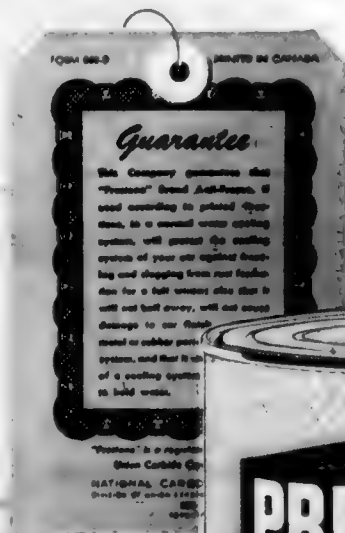

It's time for "Prime"

Hunt Planned For Snowman In Himalayas

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters). An Australian expedition has applied to the Nepalese foreign office for permission to seek out and identify the creature known as the yeti, or "Abominable Snowman" of the Himalayas.

The application was signed by Peter Byrnes, a Sydney journalist.

Byrnes and his expedition hope to visit Nepal in January to hunt yetis in the Sherpa district of Solu Khumbu, near Mount Everest.

According to Nepalese folk lore, the yetis are large semi-human, gorilla-like creatures, fierce and man-eating.

Eric Shipton, the British climber, photographed foot prints of a large creature like the yeti on slopes of Mount Everest in 1951.

Tart Apples, Sweet Honey Make Delicious Dessert

Do opposites really attract? Let's run our own experiment. Take a tart apple and sweet honey. As foods they are direct opposites. Do they attract? They form a superb combination, better in union than singly. You will think so too once you've tried this recipe for honey apple crisp. Here's a dessert that at once has the tang of the apple plus the sweet taste of the honey.

It is a beautiful dessert with more than just calories to add to the family diet, as the apple honey butter and lemon juice all add vitamins to the menu.

It is made quite easily from ingredients that you can buy all year around.

This will be one of your favorites, once you have given it a try.

HONEY APPLE CRISP

Four cups sliced apples, 1/4 cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 cup honey, 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup brown sugar, well packed, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup butter.

Spread sliced apples in a 1 1/2 quart heat resistant glass utility dish. Sprinkle with granulated sugar and lemon juice; pour honey over all. Mix flour, brown sugar, and salt in a heat resistant glass bowl. Work in butter as for biscuits, making a crumb-like mixture. Spread flour mixture over apples. Bake in moderate oven, 375° F., about 10 minutes, or until apples are tender and crust is evenly browned. If desired, garnish with tiny cheese apples, and serve warm with plain cream or with whipped cream topped with a dash of ground cinnamon.

Yield: about six servings.

CHEESE 'APPLES'

One quarter lb. American process cheese, 6 whole clove stems, 6 miniature mint leaves, red vegetable color.

Roll cheese into six small balls. Stick clove stem and tiny mint leaf into each "apple"; color with vegetable coloring.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

Keep your eye on beauty this if your brows are sparse, add a winter and you will find yourself looking prettier than ever. For eyes that have a gleam, a twinkle or slow "come-hither" look, the makeup up can promote Mother Nature's gifts.

Whenever you use make-up for the eyes, the results are best when you keep the over-all effect a natural one. There are exotic ways to do your eyes these days and unless you are the type to get away with it, you would do best to keep to the simpler handling of materials such as mascara, brow pencil and eye shadow.

Begin with the shape of your brows. They should be arched to follow the natural line of their growth. It's more fashionable today to have them on the heavier rather than the pencil-slim line, so

Teacher Studied To Enjoy Hobby

Written for The Canadian Press

By LORRAINE MCGOWAN

North Bay, Ont. (CP) — Carruthers Public School has a teacher who went to college via the post office while living in the wilds of the Northwest Territories.

She is Mrs. Ivan Clydale, whose three children also attend classes daily at Carruthers. Last Oct. 25 she received her bachelor of arts degree at the University of Western Ontario, London.

Since her marriage 10 years ago, Mrs. Clydale has lived in the most part on airports and in remote settlements. Her husband is a transportation agent and the department of transport.

Their first home was at Fort Harrison, Que., on the east coast of Hudson Bay.

From 1946 until 1949, they lived at an airport seven miles from Prince George, B.C., where after their second child was born Mrs. Clydale decided to study.

BUSY YEAR

"It was a hobby, quite the same way other women have hobbies," the soft-spoken teacher said. "It gave me something to do, and I enjoyed the work and did it with the idea of enjoyment."

The couple moved to Fort Smith, N.W.T., in September, 1949, and Mrs. Clydale wrote to Western University for her assignments in history and geography.

That year proved probably the busiest in the charming school teacher from Petrolia, Ont., has had.

The high school teacher resigned in mid-October and Mrs. Clydale agreed to substitute for her. On her first day of school, her first assignment arrived from Western University for the regular monthly reports.

"I am afraid the letters up there shook their heads over me when they found out I stayed home to do assignments instead of attending an afternoon tea."

For the next two years the couple lived at Toronto where Mrs. Clydale Clydale took extension lectures. Her course was completed at summer school last summer.

"My husband was all for the idea of studying," she said, "and without the help of my family I never could have done it."

The Clydales moved two years ago to North Bay, where her husband is on loan to the RCAF. While he is at work each day, the other four members of the family are at home. Mrs. Clydale teaches grade III and Missions, B. L. and Donald, 5, attend classes.

YMCA Group Gives $250 For Linens

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the YMCA held its final meeting of the year in the Mural Room of the "Y" on Thursday, Nov. 21, with the president, Mrs. F. S. Appleton, in the chair.

Mrs. C. C. Annett, Mrs. W. Davidson and Mrs. Walter Walker were appointed a nominating committee to bring in a report at the annual meeting to be held in January next.

The sum of $250 was voted to Mrs. D. McAdie, convener of the house committee, to be used for linen supplies and furnishings in the dormitory rooms.

Mrs. S. J. D. Clark, secretary, and Mrs. J. T. Jones, treasurer, presented the regular monthly reports.

A rummage sale, convened by Mrs. William K. Munro, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Finlayson, followed the meeting and netted the sum of $125.

Twenty-six members were in attendance.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

Daily Astrology ... BY RITA DEL MAR

FRIDAY, DEC. 2, 1955

Today's quotations: "A man can hide all things, excepting his heart." — That he is in love. — Antiphras.

Friday for everyone: Be deliberate, gentle, harmonious, cautious, systematic, keep clear of entangling alliances, upsets. Defer changes till a more propitious time. Use care en route. Attend to routine tasks and enterprises.

Look for your birthday and birthday presents.

March 21 to April 19 (Cancer): Avoid upsets, especially regarding personal interests, home or family matters. Make no changes of importance.

April 20 to May 20 (Gemini): Proceed carefully and carefully. Keep clear of people who can involve you in difficulties.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini): Put a brake on exaggerated hopes, self illusions, get the right start on practical issues, a prudent asset.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer): Strike a happy balance between observation, desire and personal or social interests. Handle these matters prudently.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo): Stay out of the limelight, resolve differences, don't force issues.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo): Reach friendly settlements to day. Be extra careful on route and concerning tools, work, health.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra): Shed light on quarrels linked to ambitions, dear ones or money matters.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio): Put up defences against those who can cause tension, upsets. Double-check plans.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius): Head off touchiness, hastiness in the interests of peace and efficiency. Save money, energy.

One of the most important aspects of good kitchen planning is proper lighting. All work areas should have good overhead lighting that doesn't cast shadows. Lighting arrangements should be checked each time a new appliance is installed (specialists say).

Critics of Casey 'Irresponsible' Kersey Charges

William C. Kersey, who was a Saanich councillor for eight years, yesterday came to the defence of Reeve Joseph Casey in the dispute over municipal gravel and sewer costs.

Mr. Kersey, former chairman of the committee on the eve of an election of both Council and public and then immediately resigning, charged that Casey can only leave the ratepayers' pockets empty.

"Saanich ratepayers must be absolutely bewildered by the casual, haphazard and irresponsible charge that heavy loads was suffered by the municipality by so-called mismanagement of its gravel pit on Sayward road," Mr. Kersey said.

"Councillor Fleming was remiss in his duties if, as reported, he knew of these conditions last May. To make this Wrap Those Parcels!

Christmas cards and parcels for far away cousins in New Zealand should be mailed by Dec. 27, post office officials said yesterday.

And if that occasion a light, but necessary, reminder in a remote part of the eastern province, special enquiries should be made at the post office.

For winter relatives and friends, too, acceptance rates are as follows:

Atlantic provinces to Dec. 27; Maritime provinces to Dec. 28; Quebec to Dec. 29; Ontario and Manitoba to Dec. 30; British Columbia to Dec. 31.

Local delivery may be made up to Dec. 27.

Shoppers are asked to use the parcel and window separation boxes provided at the post office to speed Christmas deliveries.

Highways Go to Pot -No Labor

By J. C. GRAMHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent
WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand has a road in a prime spot with more money than it can spend. This is the national roads board, responsible for main highways throughout the country.

Main roads in New Zealand are far from perfect. In fact some of them are primitive for a country with more cars per head than any nation outside North America.

On the main highways between the two largest cities, Auckland and Wellington, still has a gap of some miles without asphalt surfacing.

There is plenty of work to be done. The roads board recently received a grant of $100,000 to buy trucks and equipment to carry out the work.

It is a peculiar situation, but not one of the many anomalies which cause a country suffering from high unemployment.

Historic Building Saved

Quebec City planning commission has forbidden owner Joseph Doyon to demolish this historic house, built in 1677, and considered a prize specimen of colonial architecture. Doyon wanted to make room for new building. Now used as restaurant, "Montcalm House" was falsely reported to be place where wounded French General Montcalm was taken after the famous battle with British in 1759. (CP photo.)

Pre-Marital Sex Discussion Rages

LONDON (UPI)—A prominent worship of virginity and anti-marriage yesterday decried the physical immorality in Britain's debate on the church's opposition to pre-marital sexual relations. However, as a priest declared, the Rev. Canon E. John the "new morality" which some Catholics of St. Paul's cathedral, London, are now to teach Christian morality isn't Britain and America. "Christianity is a free-for-all statement in an interview with basis," he said. "And sex on such a basis must lead to a moral chaos."

He said the true Christian ideas of marriage and sex are mixed up with and were spoiled by an unchristian theory. The church, he said, is that all physical things are means of sex were created evil. "Thus there has been the great roots for love."

'Berry-Picker' Politicians Roving Around Country

Federal cabinet ministers are "roving around the country like people picking blueberries," Premier W. A. C. Bennett observed yesterday.

He said the ministers just had to come and see for themselves the great strides being made by the provincial government in B.C.

"Don't get me wrong," he told newsmen. "We're not planning to do anything. We hope they will pay a little of the 5 per cent sales tax into the provincial coffers as well."

TICKET-FIXING EXPLANATION

Jimmy's Home Again

Within a few hours of The Daily Colonist's appeal on behalf of his family, runaway Jimmy Page came home. The 13-year-old made himself known to RCMP officers in Nanaimo and got a ride back to Victoria. He had left home Sunday, looking for a job so he could buy a Christmas present for his dad, Charles A. Page, 1536 Burton. His five brothers, through this newspaper, appealed yesterday that he return. But Jimmy didn't know that. He was just homesick. Reunited with his brothers, Jimmy was happy last night. He's holding David, 2, on his knee. Doug, 4, is close beside him. Gary, 9, Wayne, 6, are behind him. Brother Ronnie, 10, was working when picture was taken. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

CPA Head Sees

Big Fast Planes But Fares Same

VANCOUVER (CP)—Passengers flying Canadian Pacific Airlines routes will benefit by bigger and faster planes in the next 10 years, but there will be no significant reduction in fares.

CPA president Grant McConachie told the Gordon economic commission Thursday his company plans to spend $60,000,000 for new aircraft in the decade ahead—with all planes to be built outside of Canada.

But while the new high-speed aircraft will help increase operating efficiency and reduce costs, the savings would be virtually eliminated by higher insurance and depreciation charges, he said.

All told, the future looked bright. Mr. McConachie predicted that CPA air traffic will rise on the average by 20 per cent a year during the next 10 years. Within two years it will have new radar equipment which will eliminate bad weather as a flight barrier.

Mr. McConachie was among a large number of witnesses appearing before the commission as the five-man body drove towards a completion of its three-week western tour.

VANCOUVER (CP)—An end to the "monopoly" of Trans-Canada Air Lines and lower air travel rates to the public were called for Wednesday in a brief presented to the Gordon economic commission.

Russ Baker, president of Pacific Western Airlines, said in the brief his plan was to bring air travel to low income families and small businesses.

"The TCA monopoly on Canadian mainline routes has set Canada 10 years behind the United States and some European countries in the field of low cost air transportation," said the brief.

"TCA has in reality only skimmed the cream off the traffic potential by handling first class traffic."

As an alternative to "regulated monopoly" Mr. Baker called for "regulated competition" and suggested an "air bus" service to bring air travel to low income groups.

Builder of First Plane Engine Now Homeless, Broke at 87

LOS ANGELES (UP)—The man credited with building the first successful aircraft engine, Charles Edward Taylor, 87, yesterday was forced to remain in Los Angeles County General Hospital because he had no place to go.

Taylor had been lying at the home of an elderly friend, Mrs. I. C. Shafer, but when she was forced to take a rest he lost his home and entered the hospital Nov. 19 for treatment of asthma.

Although no longer in need of medical attention, "he just doesn't have any place to go," a hospital spokesman said, "so we're keeping him on here for a while."

Taylor is the man who built the airplane engine in 1902 that

Orville and Wilbur Wright used to make the first powered flight at Kitty Hawk.

"We were sort of partners," Taylor claimed. "I built the engine and they built the plane."

The hospital said that Taylor told them for record purposes that he received $800 yearly from a fund left by Orville Wright and that was his only source of income.

ASKED BY LAWYER

'Can Chief Do This?'

Moresby Raises Question
After Figures Discussed

A Victoria lawyer, William C. Moresby Jr., has demanded a full explanation of a number of "fixed" parking tickets reported at a special meeting yesterday.

Mr. Moresby said he was representing a number of citizens.

"With respect to every parking meter violation ticket issued to me, I have paid the fine without question," he said.

"So have all my friends. I have never heard of a ticket being fixed. It comes as a great surprise to me to learn through the press that apparently some are fixed."

He was referring to reports of a meeting between the Corps of Commissioners, officials, the police commission and police department heads, including City Manager C. C. Wyatt, City Solicitor Arthur Patton and other civic officials.

FIGURES LISTED

Figures produced at the meeting showed that out of 3,875 tickets issued in October, 473 were cancelled on the spot because people were away getting change, or arrived seconds later; 28 were cancelled because meters were out of order; 22 were placed on an exempt car, and 164 had been personally cancelled by Police Chief John Blackstock.

Another 400, originally unaccounted for, were later reported to be in various stages of processing and had not been included in the October totals.

But it was the 164 torn up by Chief Blackstock which concerned Mr. Moresby.

He said that from his personal view as a taxpayer, and on instructions from citizens who had retained him, he "must demand the answer to certain questions."

HOW COME?

He asked "Where does the discretion, if any, of the chief come from to excuse some people from the provisions of the parking meter by-laws?"

"As the chief apparently admits that in his discretion 164 persons were excused from parking meter tickets for various reasons, we want to know who they were and what the reasons were."

"We are confident that the chief has proper reasons for these exemptions and therefore has no objection to making the reasons public," Mr. Moresby continued.

Mr. Moresby demanded the chief's reasons be made public, or the chief's reason for not doing so be given.

"On this subject," he said, "there should be nothing to hide and all the information should be given to the press and the citizens of Victoria."

Mr. Moresby said that he and others had spoken to the commissioners handling the parking meters were doing a good job" and that Chief Blackstock was also doing a good job.

At yesterday's meeting, Major R. C. Holmes, the commissionaire's representative, asked for the chief's reason for cancelling tickets but Mayor Claude Harrison interceded. He said the chief had the right to use discretion and that he is trustworthy.

He suggested Major Holmes "just talk to the chief" on the matter.

Last night Chief Blackstock had left the city on a hunting trip and was not available for comment.

H-Ban Demand Refused

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Eden yesterday rejected a Labor move in the Commons for an immediate ban on all nuclear explosions.

The question of controlling explosions of hydrogen and atomic weapons is "not a matter of emotion but a technical problem of very great difficulty," he said.

The prime minister replied that a ban on all nuclear explosions, including atomic weapons, would raise intricate problems of supervision and control.

"So far they have not been agreed upon internationally. I wish very much they could be. Until they can be agreed upon, there does not seem to me there is any individual action that can be taken."

Premier Promises 'Dividends' in Future

Participation dividends, similar to those proposed in Alberta, may one day be available for B.C. residents, Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated yesterday.

"Great will be the dividends our people will receive—both directly and indirectly in the future," he said yesterday.

The Alberta Social Credit League Wednesday unanimously endorsed a proposal to pay Albertans individual participation dividends from any surpluses derived from administration of natural resources rather than to "continue increasing grants to municipalities."

"We've only been in power three years but we're catching up," the premier said yesterday.

Christmas in the Air

Victoria's famous hanging baskets go back on downtown streets Monday—but wearing a Christmas look. They are filled with holly and cedar boughs, bound with red plastic ribbon and decked with tinsel. Last night, city streets were brighter—with strings of lights and the first baskets. On Saturday the Musicians' Union band will play through the streets, and on Saturdays thereafter until Christmas. It's all part of Chamber of Commerce yuletide jollity, with musicians co-operating. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Gaza Guns Roar

JERUSALEM (AP)—Heavy shooting developed on the Gaza frontier Thursday. Egyptian and Israeli troops exchanged fire in the Kissufim area in a battle lasting until nightfall.

Each side blamed the other. Israeli officials said Egyptian troops within the Gaza strip started it by opening up on Israeli outposts.

In Cairo, an Egyptian spokesman said the Israelis began the fight by blasting at two Egyptian posts near Dier El Balah, south of Gaza town, with mortars and automatic weapons.

Egypt lodged a strong complaint with the Egyptian-Israeli armistice commission.

The battle developed after an Israeli plane drew fire from Egyptian anti-aircraft guns within the Gaza strip.

Judge Indicted For Fraud

NEW YORK (AP)—Eaton R. Jones, secretary of the Joint U.S.-Canadian Pacific salmon fisheries commission, was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges of fraud in the sale of some $300,000 worth of bonds of an insolvent Alaskan company.

Jones, a Seattle municipal court judge, and The Alaska Telephone Corporation, of which Jones is secretary-treasurer and company counsel, were named in a 36-count indictment in Brooklyn.

Mother Sent To Essondale

Mrs. Mavis Irene Rachel of Vancouver, accused of murdering her seven-year-old daughter, has been committed to the Provincial Mental Hospital at Essondale.

The commitment was made by a cabinet order-in-council Monday. She will be detained at Essondale "until her complete or partial recovery."

Mrs. Rachel was arrested on Nov. 3 in her home in the Mount Pleasant district after her daughter Magdalene was found stabbed to death.

Hillary Due In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Mount Everest conqueror, Sir Edmund Hillary, was due to arrive here from Auckland this morning. He will leave Saturday night for Lima, Peru.

Old Bag Saves Day

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Scottish thrift paid off here Wednesday when a haggis saved from last year was used at the St. Andrew's Day banquet when one ordered from Vancouver failed to arrive in time. The belated haggis, which arrived today, will go into the deep freeze to be used for the celebration of the birthday of Robert Burns.

Blind Child Cured

Sainthood Possible for Pope Pius

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—An Italian weekly magazine says Vatican officials are already preparing documentation for the possible future beatification of Pope Pius XII. Beatification is the first step to sainthood.

The Italian weekly Epoca also says miraculous intervention by the Pope restored sight to an Italian child blind since birth.

The magazine says the child, who was "embraced by the pontiff while he

(the pontiff) prayed, suddenly recovered sight."

Epoca says news of the child's recovery was obtained from prelates at the Vatican.

The Vatican correspondent of Epoca, Giorgio Vecchiotti, reported that the preparations for beatification were being made "despite the understandable caution with which the subject is treated by the organs of the church concerned."

His article referred to a number

As Pontiff Prayed

of other miracles which have been unofficially attributed to the Pope.

Ten days ago the Pope permitted official confirmation of a report that he had had a vision of Christ, standing by his bed, one night in December, 1954, when doctors had feared for his life.

Vatican quarters say other miracles have occurred in the Pope's life and that documents on them are in the archives of the Vatican's secretariat of state.

Air travel "by the masses" and cargo rates low enough to build huge volumes were possible with modern aircraft, said the brief.

VICTORIA COPTER

"Three cents a passenger mile and 15 cents a ton mile—and even lower rates are possible."

Mr. Baker's brief also predicted intercity helicopter travel and cited the Victoria-Vancouver traffic as an example.

Germany Won't Pay Reds' Price for Unity

BONN, Germany (Reuters)—Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano today slammed the door on German reunification at the price of alliance with Russia as the three Western powers strongly protested Russian moves to annex East Berlin into Communist East Germany.

'Hands Off' Reds Told

BERLIN (UPI)—The ambassadors of the United States, Britain and France handed separate "hands off Berlin" notes to Soviet ambassador G. M. Pushkin last night.

The three Western envoys made it clear that their governments will resist any Soviet attempt to end four-power control and turn the city over to the East German Communists. The Soviets had indicated previously that East Berlin's affairs were now the sole concern of the East German Communist regime and not of Russia itself.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The man credited with building the first successful aircraft engine, Charles Edward Taylor, 87, yesterday was forced to remain in Los Angeles County General Hospital because he had no place to go.

Taylor had been living at the home of an elderly friend, Mrs. I. C. Shafer, but when she was forced to take a rest he lost his home, and entered the hospital Nov. 19 for treatment of asthma. Although no longer in need of medical attention, "he just doesn't have any place to go," a hospital spokesman said, "so we're keeping him on here for a while."

Taylor is the man who built the airplane engine in 1902 that

Orville and Wilbur Wright used to make the first powered flight at Kitty Hawk.

"We were sort of partners," Taylor claimed. "I built the engine and they built the plane."

The hospital said that Taylor told them for record purposes that he received $800 yearly from a fund left by Orville Wright and that was his only source of income.
